FOREWORD

This report provides an analysis and evaluation of the implementation of Ireland's second National Action Plan against Poverty and Social Exclusion under the EU open method of coordination (OMC) for the period 2003 -2005. It also provides an opportunity to broadly examine the outcome of the strategic process to combat poverty and social exclusion since the introduction of the first National Anti-Poverty Strategy (NAPS) in 1997.

There is much that is positive to report. Major improvements have been made across the board in standards of living and in access to quality services for health, education, housing, and transport. Much of this is due to our economic success which has resulted in major increases in employment participation, particularly in the case of women, and low unemployment, particularly long term unemployment. The high involuntary emigration of much of our past has now been replaced with the new challenge of growing net immigration. Much has also been due to the high levels of social investment made possible by our economic success.

But the improvements have been uneven. While all now enjoy substantially higher living standards, they have risen at a slower pace for those on lower incomes, and the gap with the majority has widened. Households most at risk of having lower living standards include families with children, especially lone parents and larger families, those with disabilities and older people living alone. One consistent characteristic of these households is joblessness, or low income from employment. For example, among those in the active age groups currently over twice as many receive weekly payments for disabilities or as lone parents, than receive unemployment-related payments.

A key part of the way forward over the coming years, therefore, is to focus on reducing the number of jobless households. This includes removing the obstacles to employment that still exist for so many in the current buoyant labour market, and investing in peoples' capabilities through effective service provision, such as education, training, health care, housing and child care. An effective combination of income support and appropriate services will also achieve the best outcomes for those who can no longer work, especially the elderly.

Our challenge now is to learn from and replicate the success we have already achieved in reducing unemployment, especially long term unemployment, through tackling joblessness more generally. We have much to learn in this regard, especially through the open method of coordination, from other EU Member States some of whom have already achieved nationally the lowest poverty levels in the world.

A priority now is to develop the next NAP/inclusion for 2006-09, in consultation with all the stakeholders. In doing so we will draw on our own experience, as set out in this report, on that of other EU countries, and on the fruits of the consultation ahead, to effectively build on what has been achieved under this strategic process, and to work towards achieving the Lisbon Goal of "making a decisive impact on poverty" by 2010.

Minister for Social and Family Affairs

INTRODUCTION

Ireland began its strategic approach to combating poverty and social exclusion with the introduction in 1997 of a National Anti-Poverty Strategy, known by its acronym, the NAPS. This was the product of close cooperation between the relevant Government Departments and agencies, including the Combat Poverty Agency, and widespread consultation with stakeholders and other interested parties. A revised and more developed NAPS, based on similar coordination and consultation, was published 5 years later in February 2002, including targets set for 2007.

In the meantime, the EU open method of coordination was introduced to assist Member States in advancing the achievement of the economic, employment and social cohesion goals set down by the Lisbon European Council in 2000. As part of the process, Member States undertook to produce National Action Plans against Poverty and Social Exclusion (NAPs/inclusion). In the period since then two NAPs/inclusion have been produced covering the periods 2001-03 and 2003-05 respectively.

In developing its NAPs/inclusion, Ireland drew heavily on its earlier National Anti-Poverty Strategy. These were supplemented by further policy initiatives and developments, many of which derived from the social partnership agreements, the most recent of which, Sustaining Progress, applies from 2003 to 2005.

This report analyses and evaluates the implementation of the second NAP/inclusion covering the period 2003/05 and also provides an update on the continued implementation of the strategy up to 2006. A third NAP/inclusion is scheduled to be introduced then to cover the period 2006-09, which will have a major role in determining the extent to which Ireland will meet the Lisbon goal of "making a decisive impact on poverty" by 2010.

The present report will make a key contribution to the preparation of the next NAP/inclusion, as it will highlight where and how substantial progress was achieved in achieving inclusion, and the priorities for more effective policies, programmes and resources required to make an even more decisive impact on poverty by 2010.

The report is structured across five separate chapters. Chapter 1 gives an outline of the major trends and challenges in achieving inclusion since 2003. Chapter 2 provides an overall assessment of the objectives and priorities in the plan and the trends. Chapter 3, the most detailed Chapter in the report, describes the implementation of the policy measures and the institutional arrangements for delivering implementation. Chapter 4 gives a number of examples of good practice which may be of particular interest to other Member States. Chapter 5 looks forward to 2006, giving an update on the key policies and priorities for implementation during the coming year.

As the report is limited to a maximum of 30 pages, more details on the measures being taken are provided in the annexes to the report. Further information, including analysis reports for individual Government Departments and the First Annual Report of the Office for Social Inclusion, can be accessed on the Office for Social Inclusion website at www.socialinclusion.ie

CHAPTER 1

Major Trends and Challenges since 2003

1.1 Introduction

The Irish NAP/inclusion 2003-2005 was framed against a background of disimproving Government finances resulting mainly from a slowdown in economic growth, itself a result of the global economic slowdown, and the need to curb inflation which was running at a higher level than the EU average. It was anticipated that the scope for increased public spending, including that provided for in the NAP/inclusion, would be constrained by these factors.

The Irish economy, however, proved to be highly resilient during the global downturn and now continues to recover as the global situation improves. This has enabled substantial progress to be made in achieving the targets in the NAP/inclusion. Emphasis on social investment has been maintained, with particular reference to removing obstacles to employment in the buoyant labour market. Details are set out in chapters 2 and 3 of this report.

Given the openness of the Irish economy, however, the level of progress that can be achieved is constrained by the need to maintain the conditions necessary for stable and sustainable growth, primarily by keeping downward pressure on costs and by maintaining competitiveness.

1.2 Economic Trends

GNP growth increased from 2.8% in 2003 to 5.5% (provisional) in 2004 and average GNP growth of 5.4% is forecast for the period 2005-2010. The level of General Government Debt fell from 32.0% of GDP (38.6% of GNP) at the end of 2003 to 29.9% of GDP (35.7% of GNP) at the end of 2004. The current forecast to end 2005 is 29.5% of GDP, which is one of the lowest levels in the EU.

Inflation fell from 3.5% to 2.3% between 2003 and 2004. However, control of inflation remains a priority - between 1996 and 2004 the Harmonised Index of Consumer Prices increased in Ireland by over 29%, well above the EU25 average of 19%. Cumulative inflation from 2000 to 2004 was 16% in Ireland as against the EU25 average of 9%. These relatively high rates of inflation, coupled with an appreciating euro, have impacted negatively on competitiveness since 2000.

1.3 Employment Trends

A combination of economic growth and active labour market policies has led to Ireland maintaining its strong employment performance. The overall employment rate increased from 65.7% at the end of 2003 to 66.7% at the end of 2004. The employment rate for women increased from 55.9% to 57.2%. The rate for older persons, aged 55-64, increased from 47.95% to 48.85%. Based on current projections, it is expected that employment rates for all three categories will meet the targets for 2010 set by EU Member States at Lisbon in 2000.

The overall labour force participation rate was 61% at the end of 2004 while the participation rate for women was 50.8%. Ireland recorded the second highest population growth at 12.3% in the ten years to 2004, well above the EU25 average of 2.2%. In 2004 the excess of births over deaths was 33,000, while net migration was 32,000.

The continued improvements in employment and participation levels have also helped to maintain unemployment at very low levels. The unemployment rate, at 4.3%, is among the lowest in the EU. There was a slight increase to 1.5% of persons who were long-term unemployed at the end of 2004, compared to 1.3% in 2002. This rate has remained within the range of 1.2% to 2.0%, with slight fluctuations, since 2000.

Considerable improvements in educational attainment, particularly in the third level sector, have resulted in an increased supply of highly educated labour relative to unskilled labour. In 2004, 28% of persons aged 25-64 had a third level qualification compared to 20% five years previously. Over the period 1999-2004, the proportion of females aged 25-34 with third level education rose from 28% to 44%. In 2004, Ireland's proportion of the population aged 25-34 with third level educational attainment was the second highest in the EU-25 (with 40% compared to an EU average of 28%).

1.4 Income Support

The main aims of income support policy have continued to be: the provision of real increases in social welfare payments, especially for those who are unable to work or who are retired; and ensuring that social welfare payments and income tax provision are structured in ways that contribute to making work pay and reconciling work and family life.

In the two years since the NAP/inclusion was agreed, the lowest rates of adult social welfare payments were increased by 19.9% while the rate of the state contributory pension was increased by 14%. Given a projected rise in the Consumer Price Index of 4.7% over 2004 and 2005 these payment increases represent real increases of 14.5% in the lowest rates of payment and nearly 9% in the state contributory pension. The rates of the Child Benefit payment were increased by 12.7% over the same period.

There has also been a greatly reduced tax burden on the lower paid. For example, those earning at or under the average industrial wage as projected for 2005 (€30,700) will pay less than 6 per cent of the total income tax bill compared to 14 per cent in 1997. After Budget 2005 over 656,500 of the 1.9 million income-earners are exempt from paying tax on their income. Budget 2005 removed all PAYE persons on the minimum wage from the tax net, while 52,100 taxpayers were taken off the higher rate of tax¹.

1.5 Poverty Trends

The key target regarding poverty in the NAP/inclusion is to “reduce the numbers of those who are ‘consistently poor’ below 2% and, if possible, eliminate consistent poverty, under the current definition of consistent poverty”².

The number of households experiencing consistent poverty, based on results of the Living in Ireland survey (LIIS), fell continuously from 15.1% in 1994 to 5.2% in 2001. The LIIS was replaced by the new EU Survey of Income and Living Conditions (EU-SILC). The 2003 results from the EU-SILC indicated that the rate of consistent poverty was 10.2% (see Table

¹ However, as a result of the most recent increase in the value of the minimum wage in May 2005 (now set at €7.65 per hour), a small percentage of the minimum wage will, again, be liable for tax.

² The consistent poverty measure is used in Ireland to ensure a focus on those who are most deprived and at risk of social exclusion. It involves using an ‘at risk of poverty’ figure combined with a number of basic deprivation indicators to determine those who are in consistent poverty. These basic deprivation indicators are based on earlier surveys of what Irish people considered were necessary to ensure a basic standard of living.

1.1 in Annex 1)³. There have been no policy changes that would have brought about such a reversal of the previous downward trend. In fact the contrary was the case. For example, the lowest rates of adult social welfare payments increased in nominal terms by some 40% between 2001 and 2005, while the Consumer Price Index rose by just 13.5% over the same period. It has been acknowledged by the organisations responsible for the two surveys that the outcome was primarily due to methodological differences in the approaches adopted in measuring what is essentially peoples' subjective perception of their degree of deprivation, and as a result it is not possible to draw any conclusions on how the situation on consistent poverty changed between 2001 and 2003.

At risk of poverty

The results from EU-SILC show that the hard data on incomes remained consistent with previous surveys, showing a small rise in the proportion 'at risk of poverty' from 21.9% to 22.7%. Ireland's high 'at risk of poverty' rate compared to other EU Member States is in part due to the very substantial real increases in household incomes generally during a period of rapid and sustained economic growth. Median household income for a single person household has risen from €171.00 in 1997 (first NAPS), to €309 in 2003 (second NAP/inclusion), an increase of 81 per cent in total, a trend that has continued over the 2 year period, 2003/05, of this plan. This has resulted from a combination of increased female participation in the workforce, reduced unemployment generally, tax reform and high earnings growth. These increases in household incomes were substantially higher than increases both in individual earnings and the incomes of those reliant on benefits and pensions over this period

The impact of the improvements in social welfare incomes in real terms is clearer from other poverty measures. For example, when the poverty line is increased by consumer prices, "the anchored poverty line approach", for the period 1994 to 2000, the impact of real increases in benefits and pensions is shown by the level of poverty actually falling by 55.9%. This trend has continued for the period since 2000, as the same combination of circumstances apply. The impact of these improvements in social welfare and other services is similarly shown by the ongoing reduction in the relative 'at risk of poverty' gap, which shows that the difference between the average income of persons regarded as being at risk of poverty and the 60% median income level, reduced from 20.7% in 2001 to 16.3% in 2003. It is, of course, also the case that the high level of home ownership in Ireland and the provision of household allowances for electricity, heating, telephone rental and TV licence, together with other services, help to provide a higher standard of living for many, especially older people, than indicators measuring monetary incomes alone can show.

The findings common to each of the survey methods and relevant indicators reveal that, overall, households experiencing joblessness or low income employment are most at risk of poverty or, at the extreme, deprivation. Among the categories identified as being most at risk of poverty are low income families with children, especially lone parent and larger families, people with disabilities, and older people living alone.

1.6 Services

Removing obstacles to employment, through the provision of appropriate and effective services is now a central part of the strategy, with capacity to provide the services being steadily built up, as resources allow. Increased female participation in the work force and the growing numbers of elderly people, especially those living alone, has created the need for much greater capacity for the care of children, those with disabilities and the frail elderly. Increased economic prosperity is facilitating greater Government investment in care services and more generally in social inclusion related expenditure across a range of other policy areas, including health, education, housing, and transport. Details of this expenditure are set out in Annex 8 while the specific progress being made is reported in subsequent chapters.

1.7 Gender

Many of the demographic, social and economic changes have a particular impact on women especially in relation to employment participation and education. Progress has been made towards meeting the aim in the NAP/inclusion of achieving a more equal society for men and women through the mainstreaming of equal opportunities across the National Development Plan/Community Support Framework (NDP/CSF). The NDP/CSF contains a number of commitments to progress gender mainstreaming, including requirements that equal opportunities be part of the criteria for selecting projects to be funded under the plan and that indicators used be disaggregated by gender. The NDP Gender Equality Unit has provided support to policy makers in implementing gender mainstreaming in their policies and has also carried out further work in relation to gender budgeting and gender impact assessment. The Equality for Women Measure in the NDP has provided a number of targeted initiatives for women, on training and decision-making, aimed at increasing the employment opportunities of women, which will be transferred to mainstream policy. The development of a National Women's Strategy will be completed in 2005. Following a nationwide consultation exercise, a strategic process on supports for families in a changing society is also being developed. This will specifically address how to provide more effective supports for families, in meeting the challenges they face as a result of the major changes taking place, with particular reference to the role of women.

1.8 Migrants and Ethnic Minorities

A steady flow of inward migration has continued, with much of this coming from the new EU Member States. Delegates from twenty-eight countries considered how best to reconcile mobility and social inclusion at an Irish EU Presidency conference in April 2004. The need to provide migrants with access to social protection and other services, and to information on these services, in culturally sensitive ways was a key theme. The benefits of a coordinated approach by immigration, employment, and social services, in cooperation with civil society were also emphasised. The findings of this conference are now informing policy and programme development in relation to the integration of migrants. The National Action Plan Against Racism was launched in January 2005 covering the period 2005-2008. Work is continuing on the development of a comprehensive Immigration and Residence Bill which is informed by a public consultation process.

Chapter 2 – Overall Assessment of Objectives, Priorities and Trends

2.1 High Level Objectives

The core objective of the strategy, which is fully consistent with the corresponding EU Lisbon objective, is to reduce substantially and, ideally, eliminate poverty in Ireland and to build a socially inclusive society. The NAP/inclusion process is designed to provide, and to further develop in an integrated way, the range of policies and programmes required to achieve that objective. This is contingent on pursuing and progressively realising the following:

- Sustaining economic growth, and more and better jobs;
- Increasing income support in real terms for those who need it and employment participation for those who are able;
- Improving access to and providing higher quality public services;
- Addressing the specific needs of groups at high risk of poverty and tackling the causes of inter-generational poverty; and
- Supporting disadvantaged communities.

2.2 Strategic Approach

Ireland has enjoyed sustained economic growth and employment since the 1990s. The priority given to investment in human resources under the National Action Plan for Employment, part funded by the European Social Fund (ESF), has resulted in significant returns in terms of a more skilled, healthy, and productive workforce. This, together with modernising income support and other services to facilitate employment participation and make work pay, have helped in significantly reducing dependency, especially among the hitherto long term unemployed, and in breaking the inter-generational cycle of poverty and dependency.

These policies have contributed to a major reduction in jobless households (where none of the adults of working age has a paid job) and a substantial increase in households with two or more adults employed. The number of households where none of the adults of working age were working has fallen from 22% in 1994 to less than 9% today. This decline is particularly marked among households with children.

The proportions affected by poverty, as a consequence, have shifted from the active to the inactive population. In 1994 41% of those at risk of poverty were unemployed compared to less than 5% at present. In 2003, from among the working age population (16 to 65), 145,339 were receiving weekly unemployment related payments. However, over twice that number (295,588) were receiving disability related payments or payments as lone parents.

Priority is now being given to removing obstacles to the employment of many people who were previously regarded as not being available for employment, in particular family members with children, especially lone parents. The support of the childcare needs of families has been a major policy focus of the Irish Government since the late 1990s. The Equal Opportunities Childcare Programme, (funded by the Exchequer, with both ESF and European Regional Development Fund (ERDF) assistance) is a key instrument for stimulating a very significant increase in the supply of childcare places, in assisting with the provision of low cost childcare for disadvantaged families and in enhancing the quality of childcare.

There has been an over threefold increase in child benefit since 1999, specifically in order to enable parents to make choices in relation to the care of their children.

A range of measures has been introduced to assist people with disabilities in employment. These include the Supported Employment Programme, which is designed to assist people with a disability integrate into a job in the open labour market. Also included is the Workway Project, which brings together employers, people with disabilities, trade unions and other groups representing the interests of people with disabilities in networks established to improve their employment opportunities. Progress is also recorded in relation to tackling the particular difficulties experienced by other vulnerable groups. These include the homeless, Travellers, migrants and ethnic minorities, prisoners and ex-prisoners.

The standard of living of pensioners has improved significantly in real terms, as a result of the priority given to substantially increasing social welfare pensions in real terms. In the period 2002 to 2005 inclusive, pensioners received increases of €44.71 per week and the target is to increase social welfare pensions to €200 per week by 2007.

A number of other issues highlighted in the Joint Inclusion Report have received particular attention:

- A new five-year action plan on educational inclusion has been developed to address problems of disadvantage among children and young people. When fully implemented the plan will involve additional annual expenditure of €40 million and 300 extra posts in the education system;
- Substantial resources have been devoted to social and affordable housing provision over the past number of years. The total housing provision, Exchequer and Non-Exchequer, in 2005 will be some €2 billion, which is more than double the spending in 2000. This will assist in meeting the housing needs of over 13,000 households in 2005, compared to just over 8,500 households in 2000. Good progress has also been made in addressing the housing needs of Travellers, particularly those living on unauthorised sites, who are especially vulnerable: the numbers in this group have reduced from 1,000 in 2003 to 600. Active engagement with the social partners on housing issues is ongoing through the establishment of a Housing Forum;
- Significant progress has been achieved in rolling out national anti-poverty strategies to regional and local level: the vast majority of local authorities are participating in the Local Authority Anti-Poverty Learning Network. More importantly a number of local authorities have established social inclusion units, and some have already developed strong and focused local anti-poverty strategies. A significant development has been the requirement by Government that all local authorities must promote social inclusion in their Corporate Plans;
- Improvements in rural transport have had a significant impact on social exclusion in rural areas (See also Chapter 4 - good practice); and
- Work is underway on the development of an Immigration and Residence Bill. Preparatory work has included public consultation and a review of best practice internationally. Considerable progress has been made in reducing the time taken to process asylum applications, leading to a reduced average time spent by asylum seekers in direct provision.

2.3 Assessment of Overall Progress

Substantial progress has been achieved across all objectives since 2003. This is evident in progress achieved in meeting or progressing a number of key targets in the area of income support, employment and unemployment, education, health and housing. As part of the evaluation of this NAP/inclusion, the Office for Social Inclusion has conducted an evaluation of the 34 specific targets set out in the NAP/inclusion. In addition some 24 specific commitments have been analysed. A summary of the outcome of this analysis is set out below in Table 1.

Table 1: Summary Analysis

Progress on targets and commitments	Number
Achieved	6
In progress	45
Limited progress	4
Insufficient progress	2
Unknown	1
TOTAL	58

An appraisal of whether the specified targets will be met, within the timescale envisaged, was also undertaken and a summary of the outcome is set out below in Table 2. Commitments that are not time-bound are not included. Also excluded from this table are 8 commitments/targets where lack of data makes it impossible to determine whether or not they will be met on time.

Table 2: ‘Will Target be met on Time’

Progress on targets	Number

Unlikely	2

Detailed reporting on the specific targets, across the four common objectives, is dealt with in Chapter 3 and in Annex 2 of this report. Further information on social inclusion activity by individual Departments covering the period of the report is available in the Publications section of the OSI website – www.socialinclusion.ie

A number of general points and common elements are set out below, that will inform the future approach to developing and implementing the NAP/inclusion.

Target-setting - Targets provide a clear focus and time-frame for meeting objectives. In retrospect the effort required within the timescale set down for meeting some targets was excessive. To maintain the ongoing credibility and thus the value of target-setting, it is essential that not only should they require substantial effort, but also the effort must be realisable within the timescale set down, save for exceptional circumstances. Analysis of whether the targeted outcomes have been achieved can also be difficult due to weaknesses in or unavailability of the data. This has been examined in detail with Departments during the evaluation process and will be fully addressed in the further development of the Data Strategy for the NAP/inclusion process, and as part of a wider data strategy which all Government Departments are required to develop.

Measuring benefits and outcomes – Reporting in relation to some aspects of the current plan is descriptive in nature and less focused on achieved outcomes. This is due to the nature of the intervention and the many factors which impact on poverty and social inclusion. It is also the case that the impact may not be clearly discernible in the short term, or that it cannot be measured simply in terms of monetary value but on the more subjective grounds of fairness and equity.

Income itself is an important indicator of outcomes, and one that is central to determining what the priorities should be in relation to social transfers and other social interventions. However, it is also essential to ensure that measures of poverty which focus solely on income do not reduce the importance of improvements in other essential services such as education, health, care, housing etc.

Poverty proofing of policies has become a useful tool in developing a better understanding of these issues. A major review of the effectiveness of proofing mechanisms is scheduled for completion by the end of 2005. In addition, a trans-national exchange project, funded by the EU Community Action Programme and led by the Combat Poverty Agency in Ireland, is assessing the extent to which mainstreaming social inclusion can be applied to policy development.

Cross-cutting issues - The evaluation has underlined the need for a coordinated approach to cross-cutting issues. These include situations where there are a number of complex administrative arrangements and strategic responses in place focusing on the same group of people. The findings of the evaluation exercise will be used in the course of the development of the NAP/inclusion process, in identifying the areas where a cross-cutting approach would be beneficial in achieving desired outcomes and in fostering the inter-agency linkages required to facilitate this approach.

Social Inclusion activity outside the NAP/inclusion process - It is important to emphasise that this report is concerned only with targets and commitments specifically contained in the second NAP/inclusion. Local authorities, local agencies, the social partners and the community and voluntary sector are also involved in a wide range of valuable and worthwhile social inclusion activities. All of these activities, both public and private, help alleviate poverty and social exclusion while also presenting learning, development and partnership opportunities for all.

2.4 Lessons Learned

The process of monitoring and evaluating progress against NAP/inclusion targets has been coordinated over the past two years by the new Office for Social Inclusion. The Office has coordinated the development of the Plan and in the process built up strong ties with the policy owners in Government Departments and across the broad range of stakeholders which have been invaluable in the subsequent monitoring and evaluation process. This in turn has meant that it could report effectively on progress through the Senior Officials Group to the Cabinet Committee on Social Inclusion, chaired by the Taoiseach (Prime Minister), and to the Social Inclusion Consultative Group representing the social partners. The process has greatly helped to strengthen the engagement of many of the actors involved in a coordinated way. It is already clear that the lessons learned, particularly in relation to target setting, focusing on outcomes and the need for crosscutting approaches to achieve more effective outcomes, will contribute positively to the development of an improved NAP/inclusion for 2006-2009.

Other social inclusion activity under the current National Social Partnership Agreement (Sustaining Progress), the National Action Plan for Employment and the NDP/CSF has contributed greatly in the learning process. Particular mention should be made of the work led by the Combat Poverty Agency and the OSI in developing indicators and focusing on social inclusion outcomes in the NDP/CSF. This work tackled weaknesses highlighted by the Mid-term Review and significantly strengthened social inclusion reporting across all Operational Programmes. It is intended that preparation for the next NAP/inclusion will incorporate the synergies between all these national processes where feasible and appropriate.

2.5 Future Strategy

The future strategy will focus on continuing to ensure that improvements in employment levels are maintained through more and better jobs. There will be a special emphasis on removing obstacles to employment in the case of lone parents, the second parent in larger families, and people with disabilities. This will require a greater cross-cutting approach focussed on more and better coordination of income and employment supports, child care and other services. Further development of similar approaches will occur in the case of Travellers, migrants and ethnic minorities. This approach will not only greatly benefit the adults involved but also, and particularly, their children. The evaluation shows that a high proportion of children at risk of poverty are either in households that are jobless or where income from employment is low. A strategic process on supports for families in a changing society, currently being prepared, will also be focussed on providing more effective State support for family care.

Improvements in the main social protection schemes and in other social services will be a key feature of the strategy, but within the constraints of the need to maintain the economic competitiveness needed for continuing economic and employment growth. Greater emphasis will be placed on the improvement of services to support employment and greater autonomy more generally, on targeting to substantially improve the position of the more vulnerable, and on the development of more coordinated cross-cutting approaches to achieve better policy outcomes. The evaluation has also underlined how better coordination at regional and local levels, where many services are actually delivered, can contribute greatly to achieving such outcomes. Provision for monitoring and evaluation will be further enhanced by more developed data strategy and poverty proofing mechanisms.

It will also be important as part of future strategy to ensure that social inclusion considerations continue to effectively influence the broad Lisbon agenda which has been recently refocused on growth and jobs. While higher growth is recognised as key to achieving more and better jobs and greater social cohesion, it is also recognised that ongoing progress to develop social cohesion is itself a major contributory factor towards achieving long-term sustainable growth. The way in which social inclusion issues can best inform the wider jobs and growth agenda and the development of the new Lisbon National Reform Programmes will be an important consideration in future strategic plans.

Chapter 3

Implementation of Policy Measures and Institutional Arrangements

3.1 Introduction

This section of the report assesses progress against targets and commitments contained in the NAP/inclusion under the four common objectives and highlights some of the key actions which were progressed or initiated by the Government to combat poverty and social exclusion since July 2003. More detailed information on progress against targets is contained in Annex 2 of this report and on the OSI website at www.socialinclusion.ie

3.2 Monitoring and Evaluation

Given the multi-dimensional nature of poverty and social exclusion, effective implementation of the NAP/inclusion process requires coordination of its various elements. Based in the Department of Social and Family Affairs, the Office for Social Inclusion (OSI) works closely with Departments to monitor implementation of social inclusion targets contained in the plan.

The work of the OSI is overseen by a management group of Assistant Secretaries drawn from relevant Departments, including the Departments of the Taoiseach (Prime Minister) and Finance. A key role for this group is the ongoing development and prioritisation of policy measures to combat poverty more effectively, especially in the light of emerging trends and challenges. In addition, the Office also reports on progress to the Senior Officials Group on Social Inclusion, and to the Cabinet Committee on Social Inclusion, which is chaired by the Taoiseach. Making the NAP/inclusion and its further development happen requires the direct involvement of a network of different entities. In addition to the Governmental and Oireachtas system this also includes social partners, the community and voluntary sector, people experiencing poverty and their representatives. Annex 3 describes the relevant institutional arrangements.

Strong monitoring and evaluation procedures have been put in place, leading to the production of this report which included:

- The strengthening of the network of Social Inclusion Liaison Officers who co-ordinate social inclusion activity in Government Departments, including more focused support from OSI;
- A review and analysis by OSI of reported social inclusion activity, which was communicated to Departments by written procedure and subsequently discussed at a series of bilateral meetings with seven of the key Departments, involving discussions with fifty-six senior officials in charge of policy;
- Discussions with social partners through the Social Inclusion Consultative Group;
- Input from the wider community and voluntary sector and from people experiencing poverty through the annual Social Inclusion Forum, with emphasis on implementation of current strategy and future focus; and
- Presentations and discussions with the Senior Officials Group on Social Inclusion and the Cabinet Committee on Social Inclusion.

3.3 Regional and Local Impact

Many of the measures to combat poverty and social exclusion are implemented at regional and local level. Effective implementation requires coordination to ensure that local variations on the nature, extent and causes of poverty are taken into account in both policy design and implementation. The OSI works with relevant Departments, with regional and local structures, and with the Combat Poverty Agency, to strengthen the focus on the regional and local implementation of the NAP/inclusion.

A number of initiatives have commenced or are being progressed during the lifetime of the Plan, aimed at increasing awareness of and involvement in the NAP/inclusion process and the embedding of social inclusion at central, regional and local levels. These include the mainstreaming of the Local Government Anti-Poverty Learning Network, the development, by many County and City Development Boards of local social inclusion strategies which reflect the targets set at national level, the embedding of social inclusion in the Corporate Plans of Local Authorities, the promotion of anti-poverty work at a regional and local level within the health services, and the promotion of social inclusion within the NDP/CSF. Information on all of these initiatives is contained in Annex 4 of this report.

3.4 Synergy with National Partnership Agreement

In April 2003 the current national partnership agreement, Sustaining Progress, set down a major part of the agenda for the further development of the NAP/inclusion through the agreed commitment to pursue a series of special initiatives on the basis of dialogue between Government and the social partners (including the community and voluntary sector). The ten Special Initiatives chosen for inclusion in the national agreement all relate to major cross-cutting issues that require mobilisation of a range of resources across sectors, organisations and individuals and at different levels of Government. These include: Ending Child Poverty; Tackling Educational Disadvantage; Long Term Unemployed; Care of Children, People with Disabilities and Older People; Migration and Interculturalism; Housing and Accommodation; Alcohol/Drug Abuse; and Including Everyone in the Information Society. It is clear that there are synergies between a number of the initiatives which are of key importance to the NAP/inclusion. The mechanism for regular reporting to social partners of progress under the special initiatives ensures a continued focus on social inclusion, in particular on the vulnerable groups, and gives an added impetus to the social inclusion process.

3.5 Communications and Consultation

Tackling poverty is not just a task for the State, but for society as a whole. There is a need, in the first instance, for effective communication on the trends and challenges in relation to poverty, and on the ongoing process for tackling it. This communication must involve all those within the governmental system, the social partners, the community and voluntary sector, the academic and research communities, the media, the wider public and, above all, the people experiencing poverty themselves. The Social Inclusion Forum (see Annex 5 for details) and Social Inclusion Consultative Group provide valuable mechanisms for ongoing consultation. In addition, a communications strategy was developed by OSI during 2004 and is in its first year of implementation. Some of the major highlights to date have been the production, in December 2004, of OSI's first annual report and the first information leaflet in a series on poverty issues, and the launch of OSI's website (www.socialinclusion.ie). The website includes, inter alia, the text of the NAP/inclusion, OSI Annual Report and relevant publications, details regarding poverty measurement, and links to social inclusion activity at a local, national and international level.

The following paragraphs provide an analysis of progress against key NAP/inclusion targets and commitments broken down by the four common objectives. This analysis is supported by a table of progress against all of the NAP/inclusion targets which is contained in Annex 2. A more detailed picture of the progress made in implementing the NAP/inclusion over the period 2003-2005 can be accessed on the OSI website - www.socialinclusion.ie, in the Publications section.

3.6 Facilitating participation in employment

The NAP/inclusion contains four employment targets. Reporting on the targets relating to women and vulnerable groups is dealt with in the section ‘to help the most vulnerable’.

As can be seen in the employment targets, significant synergies were established between the NAP/inclusion and the NAP/employment from the outset of the plan. The National Employment Action Plan 2003 – 2005 provided the strategic objectives for Irish employment policy within the context of the European Employment Strategy (EES). Further linkages between the EES and the employment targets in the NAP/inclusion are evident in the three overarching objectives of the strategy: full employment; quality and productivity of work; and social cohesion and inclusion. Implementing these targets and objectives has contributed to the reduction in unemployment rates and the provision of paid employment, which is recognised as the best means of combating poverty and social exclusion. It is intended to develop these linkages through enhanced co-ordination during the preparatory period for the next NAP/employment and the next NAP/inclusion, which are both due to commence in October 2006.

Significant progress is being made in the implementation of the target to increase employment rates as set out in the NAP/employment and it is possible that the targets of an employment rate of 70% for the overall working age population will be achieved by 2010. This assessment is derived from the ‘Employment in Europe 2004: Recent trends and prospects’ report, which also concluded that it is likely that the employment rate targets of 60% for the female working age population and 50% for the older working age population will be achieved. Table 3 sets out the Irish and EU employment rates for 2003 and 2004.

Table 3: Actual and Target EU and Irish Employment Rates

Employment Rate	EU Actual 2003	EU Actual 2004	Ireland Actual 2003	Ireland Actual 2004	EU Target 2005	EU Target 2010
OVERALL	63%	63.7%	65.7%	66.7%	67%	70%
Female	55.1%	56.1%	55.9%	57.2%	57%	60%
Older	40.2%	40.6%	47.95%	48.85%	n/a	50%

To increase employment rates, measures to assist in reconciling work and family life are needed. The availability of high quality and affordable childcare greatly influences employment participation rates, especially of lone parents. National policy on childcare and the implementation of childcare services is implemented through the Equal Opportunities Childcare Programme.

Equal Opportunities Childcare Programme

To the end of May 2005, 2,497 grant applications under the Equal Opportunities Childcare Programme 2000 - 2006 (EOCP) have been approved, making almost €96 million in capital, staffing and quality improvement grants for Childcare nationwide. This funding has been provided under the NDP, with the assistance of the ERDF and ESF. A total of €341 million has been approved for a wide range of capital and staffing projects across the country and, on completion of the EOCP, this funding is projected to create some 36,000 new centre based childcare places and will support 30,476 existing places. It is noteworthy that over 24,600 of these new places had already opened by end 2004. Much of the funding remaining under the current strand of the EOCP is required for ongoing support towards the staffing costs of community based not for profit childcare services located in disadvantaged areas and for the continuing support of projects which enhance the quality of childcare in Ireland. In addition, the Government has already made a commitment to the further development of childcare infrastructure.

Long-Term Unemployment

The target to eliminate long-term unemployment by 2007 has proved to be more difficult to achieve. The long-term unemployment rate for the last quarter of 2004 was 1.5%. Although this rate stood at 3.1% in 1998, which represents a significant reduction over the past six years, the rate has consistently been between 1% and 2% since 2000 and currently there are approximately 28,900 persons who have been unemployed for a period of twelve months or more. Given this pattern it would appear that this target will not be achieved by 2007. However, good progress in supporting the long-term unemployed back into employment is being achieved through various Active Labour Market Programmes which facilitate access by unemployed and inactive persons to the labour market and which are co-financed by the Irish Government and the ESF under the NDP.

Details of some of the key initiatives to combat long-term unemployment are included in Annex 7.

3.7 Facilitating access to resources, rights, goods and services for all

Social Welfare Payment Rates

Budget 2004 and 2005 provided for increases in allowances, pensions and a range of other supports which directly benefit the 970,000 people who claim a weekly social welfare payment and, when their dependents are included, a total of more than 1.5 million people, or almost four out of every ten people in the State. The increases, averaging over 8%, are more than three times higher than the expected rate of inflation in 2005. The lowest adult social welfare payment is now €148.80 per week which is on the way to achieving the NAP/inclusion target rate. The total funding for social welfare in 2005 is €12.25 billion which represents one third of government spending. As a result of substantial Child Benefit increases in recent budgets, the equivalence level of basic child income support is now at 33.3% of the minimum social welfare rate, meeting the NAP/inclusion target. Child Benefit is paid to 520,000 families in respect of over 1 million children.

Of the five key targets relating to social welfare payments, all are in progress or have been met.

Reconciling Work and Family Life

The Department of Social and Family Affairs is co-ordinating, with an inter-departmental committee, an integrated strategy on supports for families and family life, which is due for completion by end of summer 2005. It is also engaged in a number of different reviews which will assist people in reconciling work and family life, i.e. Family Income Supplement (FIS), Child Dependant Allowance (CDA) and Lone Parents.

Removing those on the minimum wage from the tax net

The level of the minimum wage was increased to €7.65 per hour with effect from 1 May 2005. The target of exempting the minimum wage for income tax was achieved in Budget 2005. However, as a result of the most recent increase in the value of the minimum wage, the position is that, in the year 2005, a single person on the minimum wage will have 94.4% of their income free of tax. This compares to a position pre-Budget 2005 where only 90% of the wage was free of tax. When the minimum wage was introduced in April 2000, less than 64% of the minimum wage annualised was free of tax. Budget 2005 also increased the Age Exemption limits for income tax once again. In four years, the limits have increased by well over 50% whereas inflation for the same period is expected to increase by slightly less than 13.5%. Under this system, those aged 65 or over are exempt from tax up to specified limits. Over the last 8 budgets 75,700 elderly people have been taken out of the tax net.

Health

The ten-year National Health Strategy (2001) is the framework within which the NAP/inclusion targets and commitments on health are being progressed. Policy initiatives being implemented include: Health Impact Assessment; Primary Care Strategy; Cardiovascular Health Strategy and the Cancer Strategy. Under the National Smoking Cessation Plan, Nicotine Replacement Therapy is made available without charge to lower socio-economic groups. The Report of the National Taskforce on Obesity was published in May 2005. A draft Food and Nutrition Strategy is currently being prepared and will also focus on obesity and food poverty in children and young people. Government has committed increasing resources to healthcare, with estimated expenditure in 2005 of €1.36 billion, an increase of 20.6% over the 2003 figure. A recent initiative to provide an additional 200,000 medical cards will allow access free of charge to GP services, under the General Medical Scheme. This will benefit persons on low incomes, particularly families with children.

While undoubtedly many initiatives are underway which are impacting on the NAP/inclusion target groups, the absence of baseline data makes it impossible to measure how progress is being made against some of the Health targets. However, there has been a significant focus on research and data collection over the lifetime of the current plan in an effort to address this issue. The benefits of this work should feed into the development of Health targets for the next NAP/inclusion. Valuable work on awareness raising about existing health targets and social inclusion issues aimed at staff in the wider health service is being undertaken which should help to mainstream actions to address existing and future targets.

The Health Reform Programme provided for the establishment of a Health Services Executive (HSE) with effect from 1 January 2005 allowing the Department of Health and Children to reposition itself to concentrate on policy and strategic issues, regulation, governance and evaluation. This represents a major step towards the goal of creating a national focus for service delivery and executive management of the system and will facilitate a more focused and co-ordinated approach to social inclusion issues.

Education

The target to halve the proportion of pupils with serious literacy difficulties by 2006 is being addressed by a strategy of implementing targeted initiatives in disadvantaged primary schools. The new action plan on educational inclusion will focus in particular on addressing the problems of literacy and numeracy among primary school children. Although baseline data and outcome measures have been lacking, which makes monitoring progress on this target difficult to assess, action has been taken to strengthen reporting in this area. Recent surveys of literacy in primary schools serving disadvantaged communities showed the proportion of pupils with serious literacy difficulties at about 27-30% or about three times the national average.

Progress is being made on the early school-leaving target but it is unlikely that the target of a school completion rate of 90 per cent will be met by 2006. Although retention to upper second level has remained relatively constant at around 82 per cent in recent years, the equivalent educational attainment among 18-24 year olds is approximately 87 per cent, which includes those following educational pathways outside the mainstream school senior cycle.

The new action plan for educational inclusion includes a number of measures to promote retention to upper second level and to address the issue of literacy and numeracy in schools. (See Chapter 5 for further details). The adult literacy target is likely to be met. An International Adult Literacy Survey, conducted in 1995 found that 25% of Irish Adults aged 16 – 64 possessed the lowest level of literacy skills – Level 1. Given the pattern of demographic change and rising levels of educational attainment, it is likely that this will be reduced to below 20% by 2007. There is ongoing and increased support for adult literacy programmes. However, monitoring and evaluation of attainment outcomes needs to be further developed. Under the NDP, and with the assistance of the ESF, investment in this area in 2004 amounted to €19 million compared to €13.6 million in 2001 and €1.1 million in 1997. Client numbers rose in the same period from 5,000 to 30,000 a year. The National Development Plan set a target of having 113,000 participants on adult literacy programmes for the period 2000 – 2006. A participation rate of 100,000 was achieved in the period 2000-2003.

Housing

The target of 500,000 new housing units between 2000 and 2010 is well on the way to being met, with 61% of that total completed by end 2004. 60% of the target of 41,500 Local Authority housing starts between 2000 and 2006 has been achieved, with investment under the National Development Plan in this area running 8% ahead of target. The shortfall in the social housing (as opposed to affordable housing) element of the total number of Local Authority starts is due to higher than expected construction costs. However, over €2 billion in total will be spent in 2005, with €1.3 billion of this being Government spending on social and affordable housing, which is more than double the 2000 total. This will assist in meeting the needs of 13,000 households compared to 8,500 in 2000.

The target of providing an appropriate mix of social and affordable housing is also in progress. The results of a recent housing needs survey will be published in September 2005 and will provide data on the categories of households in need of housing and assist in the review of housing policy in general. In their most recent housing strategies, local authorities were obliged to address the housing needs of all sectors in their population and this should provide an appropriate mix of dwelling types to cater for all housing needs and encourage mixed and balanced communities.

Transport

Since 2000, all major refurbishment projects at bus and rail stations, together with the construction of new stations or purchase of trains or buses, take account of the needs of people with mobility or sensory impairments. This is being co-financed by the ERDF under the NDP. An accessibility audit of all railway stations, commissioned in 2003, provides a comprehensive assessment of the works that have to be carried out and a programme of station investment is being developed based on its findings. Information on the Rural Transport Initiative is reported on under the common objective 'to help the most vulnerable' and in chapter 4.

Commitment to Service Provision

To meet the commitment to develop more formal expressions of entitlements all Government Departments have published Customer Charters and will report progress in their Annual Reports during 2005.

3.8 To Prevent the Risks of Exclusion

Homelessness

The target to provide sufficient emergency accommodation for the homeless can be considered to be complete, as it is generally accepted by the statutory and voluntary service providers that sufficient accommodation is available for those who wish to avail of it. In achieving this target, efforts were concentrated on providing emergency accommodation and eliminating rough sleeping.

Data on homelessness is collected via the Assessment of Housing Needs, but it is recognised that there is a need for a more comprehensive data system to monitor progress. In response to this, the LINK system, which aims to improve services and service delivery by ensuring homeless persons receive a continuum of care based on an accurate and up to date assessment of their needs, is being developed. In addition, an IT system is being developed for local authorities to assist them in carrying out their housing functions.

Consultants have been engaged to undertake a review of the implementation of the Government's homeless strategy and to make recommendations to promote further progress in addressing homelessness.

Homeless Offenders

HOST (Homeless Offenders Strategy Team) - a multi-agency unit within the Probation and Welfare Service of the Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform has developed and published a strategic plan (2004-2007) the main aims of which are to:

- Prevent and minimise homelessness amongst offenders; and
- Improve access to accommodation for homeless offenders.

Youth homelessness.

Since 2003 €1.5 million has been allocated by the Department of Health and Children for the development of youth homelessness services (approximately €2 million has been allocated since 2001).

Under the Youth Homelessness Strategy (YHS), which was published in October 2001, 195 new whole-time equivalent posts which impact on youth homelessness services (including Management Staff, Project Workers, Social Workers, Family Support Workers, Aftercare Workers and Public Health Nurses) have been filled across the 10 former Health Board regions up to December 2004. 11 new units have opened nationwide and 42 new/extended services have been developed around the country. It is considered that there is now sufficient emergency night-time accommodation for the current youth homeless population of Dublin.

Drugs Misuse - A Special Initiative under Sustaining Progress

Progress achieved during the first 3 years of the Drugs Strategy, 2001 – 2008, was detailed in a progress report published in March 2005. The report measured progress using a series of key performance indicators, as set out in the strategy.

The strategy was also evaluated in a mid-term review, published in June 2005, which found that the current aims of the strategy are sound and that progress is being made across all actions contained therein, although progress varies from action to action. Some amendments were recommended in the review in order to better deliver on the aims of the strategy, including changes to the performance indicators by which progress is measured. A review of the overall impact of the strategy will be undertaken when the strategy is completed.

Social Participation

In order to strengthen supports to volunteering and to encourage participation 32 projects are currently being funded in the amount of €5.48 million over a three-year period under the Scheme to Support the Role of Federations, Networks and Umbrella bodies. Under the Funding Scheme for Training and Supports 20 projects are currently being funded totalling €1.83 million over three years. In addition the Anti-Poverty Networks have been funded to a total of some €5.1 million over the past 4 years. The Wheel, which addresses learning and development issues common across the entire Community and Voluntary sector, is funded to a total of €7,000 per annum with a further grant in 2004 of €250,000.

e-Inclusion

For those who are already at high risk of exclusion, the recent unprecedented growth in the usage of Information and Communication Technologies (ICT) can present a serious risk rather than an opportunity as some vulnerable and low income groups may not have access to them. A revised national e-Inclusion strategy has been developed based on a comprehensive review of national eInclusion policy that was undertaken by the Department of the Taoiseach in consultation with the relevant Departments, agencies, organisations and bodies. The results of an analysis of the ICT needs and capacity of the Community and Voluntary Sector, being carried out by NUI Maynooth, will feed into the rollout of projects aimed at building the ICT capacity of the Community & Voluntary sector by establishing an online presence and providing them with the ability to communicate with members, interested parties and citizens by means of websites, hosted intranets, secure e-mail and SMS gateways.

Indebtedness

The Money Advice & Budgeting Service (MABS), a free and independent, information and advice service funded by the Department of Social & Family Affairs, continues to play a big role in developing community education on debt prevention, budgeting and financial management. The MABS budget is €3.6 million for 2005 compared to €1.4 million in 2004, €0.4 million in 2003 and €0.3 million in 2002.

Access to Sport, Arts and Culture

The Sports Capital Programme provided funding of almost €31 million to 4,271 projects throughout the country in the period 1999 to 2004. The main aim of this programme is to assist with the provision of sporting facilities aimed at increasing levels of participation and improving standards of performance.

The ACCESS scheme provides funding for arts and culture projects throughout the country. In assessing projects for approval, account was taken of the need for the facility in the geographical catchment area. In addition, the very significant increase in cultural and heritage tourism, with over 600,000 overseas visitors to Ireland annually indicating a special or particular interest in heritage and culture, will result in increased employment opportunities for those living in the areas targeted for investment.

3.9 To help the most Vulnerable

Children – Information on support for children

A special initiative is being progressed under the National Partnership Agreement, to assist vulnerable children and their families. The Office for Social Inclusion is co-ordinating work in this area, involving the relevant Government Departments, the Combat Poverty Agency, the National Children's Office and the Social Partners. The initiative also includes an examination of obstacles to employment for lone parents through a steering group comprised of the Department of the Taoiseach, the Department of Finance and the Office for Social Inclusion. Work also includes an examination of child income supports which is being undertaken by the National Economic and Social Council.

The Department of Health and Children, through the National Children's Office, and the Department of Social and Family Affairs, are jointly funding a National Longitudinal Study on children. It is anticipated that 10,000 children from birth and 8,000 children aged nine will be recruited to participate in the study, which is expected to commence later in 2005. This study will inform the development of the next NAP/inclusion. The study will provide a valid source of data on the impact on child development by a wide range of policies, especially by those targeted at children in poverty.

Older people

Health

Additional funding of almost €10.7 million (including €1.2 million for palliative care) was provided by the Department of Health and Children for Services for Older People in 2004, of which approximately €3.75 million went to the Home Help Service. Funding was provided in 2004 to develop models of good practice in the care of older people in the community and some Health Boards have developed pilot projects. Under the National Treatment Purchase Fund (NTPF) programme, in most instances, anyone waiting more than three months for an operation can be facilitated. In this way the target with respect to older people and hip replacement has been achieved.

Accommodation

In relation to the target for adequate heating systems in local authority rented accommodation, a central heating programme was introduced in 2004 to accelerate delivery of the target by 2007. €16 million was spent in 2004 upgrading the heating systems in approximately 3,000 of the estimated 45,000 local authority dwellings which require such upgrades. In 2005, the total amount set aside for this purpose has been increased to €36 million.

Long-Term Care

A study on the future financing of long-term care by the Department of Social and Family Affairs in 2003 was followed by a consultation process with interested groups. An inter-departmental Working Group has now been established to identify the policy options for a financially sustainable system of long-term care. The Group will report by mid-2005.

Travellers

Health

Implementation of Traveller's Health Strategy – a National Strategy 2002-2005 is continuing. A feature of this strategy is that Travellers and Traveller organisations are involved in determining health priorities for their community and in decisions on the allocation of resources through membership of the Traveller Health Units in each Health Service Executive area.

Progress to date includes: the appointment of regional Traveller Health Co-ordinators; the establishment of Primary Health Care projects, which involve Travellers in the delivery of health services to their own community; the establishment of a Traveller Ethics, Research and Information Working Group which meets regularly to consider applications on research into Traveller health for ethical approval; and a sub-group of this Working Group which is progressing the administration of an ethnic identifier question on the Hospital Inpatient Enquiry/Perinatal Systems in two Dublin hospitals.

The absence of data in relation to Traveller health has made it impossible to determine whether the target in this regard will be met. The Department of Health and Children and the Department of Health, Social Services and Public Safety, Northern Ireland are jointly committed to carrying out a Travellers' All-Ireland Health Study and it is expected that the Study will commence in 2005 and should go some way towards filling the data gap.

Task Force on the Travelling Community

The Second Progress Report of the Committee to Monitor and Co-ordinate the Implementation of the Recommendations of the Task Force on the Travelling Community is currently being finalised and will be published during 2005. A High Level Group on Traveller Issues was established under the aegis of the Cabinet Committee on Social Inclusion, with a remit to ensure that the relevant statutory agencies involved in the full range of services to Travellers focus on the immediate and practical delivery of such services, including accommodation.

Traveller Accommodation

The current Traveller Accommodation programme has ended and new programmes to cover the period 2005 – 2008 are being finalised by local authorities. Under the previous programme, which identified a total of 3,785 accommodation units as being the projected need, a total of 1,371 additional families had been provided with, or assisted in the provision of, permanent accommodation by end 2004, while the number of families on unauthorised sites had decreased from 1207 to 601. In addition, 346 existing sites were upgraded to modern standards and 133 basic service bays provided for Travellers awaiting permanent accommodation.

On foot of a 2004 review of the Housing (Traveller Accommodation) Act 1998, the format for the count of Traveller families undertaken annually by local authorities is to be reviewed while the new accommodation programmes for 2005 – 2008 will contain annual targets for accommodation provision.

Racism

The National Action Plan Against Racism, launched in January 2005, covering the period 2005-2008, seeks to address racism and promote a more inclusive, intercultural society. The Plan is the vehicle for the operation of the Sustaining Progress Special Initiative on Migration and Interculturalism. A Steering Group has been established to oversee the implementation of the Plan. The Minister for Justice, Equality & Law Reform announced details of funding given to organisations under a grant scheme to coincide with the launch of the plan. The aim of the scheme was to enable organisations to raise awareness about racism and highlight cultural diversity in Ireland. A total of €250,000 was allocated to 44 projects nationally.

To support the aims of the plan, the Steering Group for the plan announced a grant scheme in May 2005 for the development of actions, initiatives or projects in the area of sport, recreation and the arts, which encourage participation and involvement of ethnic minority groups. €200,000 was made available under this scheme.

Applications for Asylum

Considerable progress continues to be made in relation to asylum application processing. Some 2,700 cases awaited processing in the Office of the Refugee Applications Commissioner and the Refugee Appeals Tribunal at the end of May 2005 compared to some 5,400 cases at the end of May 2004 - representing a decrease of 50%. This can also be contrasted with some 7,550 cases at year-end 2002. 734 cases were in the asylum process for over 6 months at the end of May 2005 compared with 6,500 such cases in September 2001.

Areas marked by exclusion

Rural Transport Initiative (RTI)

The Rural Transport Initiative was launched in July 2001 to provide funding on a pilot basis for community organisations and community partnerships to address the particular transport needs of their rural area and also to improve transport facilities and services to rural dwellers. The success of this initiative can be seen from the fact that some 65,000 RTI services were provided in 2004 and over 500,000 passenger trips were recorded on these services. This initiative has been identified as an example of good practice and is detailed in Chapter 4 of this report.

Urban Poverty and Rural Disadvantage

The NAP/inclusion refers to the objective to combat social exclusion in urban areas by building viable and sustainable communities, improving the lives of people living in disadvantaged urban areas and community ownership of the strategy. Tackling poverty and social exclusion in rural areas requires the provision of employment and support services, together with access to required services and infrastructure, and the empowerment of the local community. A number of programmes, some of which are co-financed by EU Structural Funds under the NDP, aim to provide these services and are detailed in Annex 6.

People with Disabilities

The National Disability Strategy, launched in September 2004, underpins the participation of people with disabilities in society. The strategy comprises four elements:

- Disability Bill 2004;

- Comhairle (Amendment) Bill 2004;
- Six Outline Sectoral Plans; and
- Commitment to a multi-annual investment programme for disability support services.

Developments in relation to employment and education regarding persons with disabilities are set out below.

Vulnerable Groups and Employment.

Good progress has been made in increasing the employment rate of women in the workforce, which in the last quarter of 2004 was 57.2%. It is therefore likely that the target of 60%, as envisaged in the National Employment Action Plan, will be met by 2010. This rate has increased substantially over the last decade and has been one of the mainstays of labour force growth. Unemployment among women is also low, with a female unemployment rate of 3.9% in the last quarter of 2004, which is below the national average of 4.3%, thus achieving the NAPS target.

In general progress on achieving the target regarding employment participation for other vulnerable groups has been varied. In the case of older people the unemployment rate for those aged 55 to 64 is now also below the national average. For other vulnerable groups, including prisoners/ ex-prisoners, migrants and ethnic minorities, progress cannot be determined as there is currently no data available on their unemployment levels. In the case of people with disabilities and Travellers, it is doubtful that the target will be reached by 2007. In the first quarter of 2004, 37% of persons aged 15 to 64 who were ill or had a disability were in employment compared to just under 64% of the total population in the same category. The 2002 Census recorded an unemployment rate among Travellers at 69%.

Despite these variations, specific employment programmes tailored to the needs of vulnerable groups have been developed and these include: the Supported Employment Programme; the Workway Project; Expanding the Workforce programme; and the EQUAL Community Initiative Programme, which is co-funded through the European Social Fund, with a total ESF budget of €34.5 million up to 2007.

Vulnerable Groups and Education

Progress on the implementation of some of the education targets for vulnerable groups is difficult to assess owing to the lack of baseline and/or current data, e.g. the target for each third-level institution to double the participation by mature disadvantaged students, including Travellers and refugees, by 2006. Currently no statistics are compiled on the ethnic background of entrants to higher education institutions or the socio-economic background of mature students. Despite this, contextual information suggests that some progress is being made in this regard. The 2002 census indicated that 1.4% of adult Travellers possessed a third level qualification and recent statistical data from the Department of Education and Science show that in 2003/04 approximately 10% of full-time new entrants to higher education were mature students (i.e. over 23 years of age). A recent report on higher education participation also noted significant increases in the participation rate of lower socio-economic groups in tertiary education during the period 1998-2003.

Based on initial results from a recent survey by the Association for Higher Education Access and Disability (AHEAD), the target to increase participation by students with disabilities at third level to 1.8% by 2006 will be met. The results indicate that for the 2003/04 academic year 2.4% of all undergraduate students have a disability compared with 1.1% in the academic year 1998/99. Further progress on these targets is being achieved through the work of the National Office for Equity of Access to Higher Education, which was established in August 2003. This Office facilitates educational access and opportunity for groups who are under-represented in higher education, including students from socio-economically disadvantaged backgrounds, students with a disability and mature 'second chance' students. During 2005 the Office will be working on developing mechanisms to gather more comprehensive data on the four target groups: socio-economically disadvantaged school leavers; members of the Traveller community and ethnic minorities; students with a disability; and mature students.

Of the two education targets specifically aimed at Travellers, one has been achieved and the other has not. Feedback from the Visiting Teachers for Travellers service indicates that the majority of Traveller children in primary school are in age appropriate places and that in 2003 there were almost 6,000 Traveller children in primary schools. On the other hand, 85% of Traveller children transferred to post primary schools in 2004, below the target of 95%. Furthermore, approximately only 45% of Travellers in the age cohort are attending post-primary schools, which highlights the need to focus on the retention rate of Travellers in second level education. To address this situation a five-year Traveller Education Strategy is being developed.

Chapter 4

Good Practice

4.1 Introduction

This chapter contains details of three examples of good practice drawn from key policy measures or institutional arrangements implemented during the period of the second NAP/inclusion.

4.2 NAPS Social Inclusion Forum

The Social Inclusion Forum (SIF) was established by the Government in 2002 as an important institutional structure aimed at ensuring the involvement of all actors in the drive to combat poverty and social exclusion. The SIF is jointly organised and funded by the National Economic and Social Forum (NESF) and OSI, with input from the Combat Poverty Agency (CPA), the European Anti-Poverty Network (EAPN) and the Department of the Taoiseach. Convened by the NESF, the SIF provides an opportunity for representatives of Government and state agencies, the social partners, NGOs, people experiencing poverty and their representatives to meet on an annual basis. A report of the proceedings is published and widely disseminated.

The second Social Inclusion Forum was held on 26 January 2005 in the Royal Hospital, Kilmainham, Dublin. With a capacity attendance of almost 300 people, the main focus of this meeting was on vulnerable groups who face high risks of poverty. These groups include older people, children and young people, people with disabilities, minority groups and women. A series of capacity-building meetings, which were held in regional locations prior to the SIF, was a new and innovative element in this year's Forum. This enhanced the interaction and involvement of people experiencing poverty and their representatives on the day.

The SIF plenary session included addresses by the Chair of the NESF and representatives of the EU Commission, the Economic and Social Research Institute, the European Anti-Poverty Network and the Office for Social Inclusion. These were followed by roundtable discussions to encourage participants to consider, question and comment on issues raised by speakers. The plenary session was followed by a series of parallel workshops focusing on each of the target groups where further presentations and discussions took place and suggestions were put forward on how to address the issues of concern. Both a national and local perspective was presented at each workshop to ensure regional balance was achieved. The conclusions drawn from the workshops feed directly into the monitoring and evaluation of the current NAP/inclusion and will also prove to be a valuable contribution in developing the next National Action Plan.

The 2005 Forum was attended by the Minister for Social and Family Affairs, Mr. Séamus Brennan T.D., who stressed that the SIF was a key element of the Government's commitment to consult with all the relevant stakeholders in the fight against poverty and social exclusion.

Further details regarding the 2005 SIF are set out in Chapter 3 and in Annex 5. Copies of the 2005 SIF Conference report are available in the publications area of the Office for Social Inclusion Website at <http://www.socialinclusion.ie>

4.3 Building Healthy Communities Programme

In May 2003 the Department of Health and Children and the Combat Poverty Agency jointly launched the Building Healthy Communities Programme which has a specific focus on community participation in tackling poverty and health inequalities. Funding totalling €90,040 was provided to 31 projects during the first phase of the Programme which ran from 2003-2004. Funding requests for the second phase, covering the period 2005-2007 are currently being evaluated. A total budget of 180,000 per year has been allocated for the duration of the three years of Phase 2.

The main aims of the programme are to:

- Promote the practice of community development in improving health and well-being outcomes for disadvantaged communities;
- Inform and support policy initiatives relating to the links between poverty and health;
- Explore mechanisms for effective, meaningful and sustainable community participation in decision making regarding health; and
- Build the capacity of community health interests to draw out practice and policy lessons from their work.

Support for projects in the first round of funding was intended as a way of building knowledge, understanding and capacity about the links between poverty and health and skills in community participation in health issues. An evaluation of the programme's first phase has been undertaken and the report, published in October 2004, has noted some positive outcomes from the work to date. The most important of these being:

- The establishment of a range of mechanisms and procedures to facilitate working relationships involving community-based groups, health and other service providers. Some of these are already pointing the way to good practice in relation to future planning;
- The successful completion of community-based courses;
- Greater participation in activities by more disadvantaged people and increased voluntary involvement in a range of consultative mechanisms;
- An increase in the extent to which health issues have featured on various programme and project agendas – including Community Development Boards, area-based Partnerships, Community Projects and RAPID Structures;
- An increase in awareness – within and between participating projects – about issues linking health to poverty and disadvantage. The spread of interest groups and different communities of interest involved (and the facilitation of networking between them) has been important in allowing this to happen; and
- The beginning of more productive working relationships between community groups and service providers; and the beginning of more effective networking amongst a range of stakeholders locally, regionally and nationally.

At a more general policy level, there has been a marked contribution to how community development and community involvement can be effectively progressed. This is especially evident within the context of new and emerging structures in health service planning and development. A copy of the evaluation report is available on the Combat Poverty Agency website – www.combatpoverty.ie.

4.4 Rural Transport Initiative

The Rural Transport Initiative (RTI) was launched in 2001 as a result of a commitment by the Department of Transport in the National Development Plan 2000-2006 to support the development of pilot public transport initiatives in rural areas to address the issue of social exclusion caused by lack of access to public transport. An intensive consultation process and a public information campaign was part of the process. It was recognised that the problem of low population densities and very dispersed settlements in rural areas in Ireland can make it difficult to provide commercial public transport services, resulting in mobility difficulties for people who do not have access to a car. Those identified as most marginalised included women, the elderly, the mobility impaired, unemployed and young people. Lack of access to transport may also lead to lack of access to essential services, social and cultural activities and access to employment and training.

The RTI is about local communities meeting their own needs by:

- Developing new models of transport which are innovative and responsive to those needs (including community bus and car services and private transport providers);
- Involving key stakeholders in the planning, design, co-ordination and operation of the services (including the community, local development organisations, local government and statutory agencies);
- Examining the use of new technologies; and
- Contributing to the development of future rural transport policy

Thirty four projects are participating in the RTI – at least one project from almost every county of Ireland. Some 65,000 RTI transport services were provided in 2004 and over 500,000 passenger trips were recorded on these services. The scheme provided direct employment for 90 people and supported an additional 200 bus drivers. The Free Travel Scheme was extended to RTI transport services in 2003.

An independent appraisal in 2004 found that the initiative had achieved good progress since its inception. It was noted that 75% of the passengers using the services are female and that 66% of passengers are aged 66 or over. The main qualitative benefits identified included:

- Increased levels of independence and reduced isolation for excluded rural residents;
- Improved access to other public services such as healthcare, training and education;
- Higher quality standards in rural public transport provision through the use of passenger assistants, improved vehicle accessibility and higher vehicle standards;
- Learning and capacity-building at local level regarding local transport provision and awareness raising amongst the community and statutory sectors of the transport needs of rural dwellers; and
- Improved co-ordination in rural public transport provision.

Annual funding of €3 million was provided by the Department of Transport for the initiative for each of the years 2002, 2003 and 2004. The 2005 allocation is €4.5 million and funding of the order of €5 million for the RTI in 2006 is anticipated. In line with one of the key recommendations of the appraisal, the RTI will be extended to the end of 2006 and it is intended that it will be put on a permanent footing from 2007.

A copy of the appraisal report is available at <http://www.adm.ie/>

Chapter 5 – Update for 2005-2006

5.1 Meeting Existing Targets

The main focus over the next year will be on continuing to make progress on meeting the targets set out in the current NAP/inclusion. The timescale for many of these targets is 2007, which was the deadline set in 1997 under the original National Anti-Poverty Strategy (revised in 2002). Progress on these targets has been examined in previous Chapters. Planned new measures or changes to existing measures are outlined below. In addition, reviews are soon due for completion in relation to a number of other policy areas, which may lead to changes during 2005/2006.

5.2 New Measures/Planned Changes to Existing Measures

The following sections provide details of those policy areas where new measures or changes to existing measures are envisaged during 2005/2006, broken down across the four common objectives in the NAP/Inclusion

5.2.1 Facilitating Participation in Employment

The Irish policy approach to 'making work pay' focuses on encouraging labour market participation through financial and non-financial incentives. Financial incentives such as the minimum wage, (increased to €7.65 from May 2005), structural changes to the taxation system, and reductions in social security contributions, particularly for the low paid, seek to ensure that the interaction between pay, tax and benefits removes disincentives to entry, participation and progress in the labour force. The objective is to make work a more attractive option for all, while at the same time preserving a high level of social protection. Non-financial policies to make work pay are in particular aimed at those outside, or at risk of dropping out of employment and seek to reduce the under representation of vulnerable groups such as lone parents, women, older workers, and the disabled in employment. Policy initiatives in this area include: employment and training initiatives; flexible working arrangements; increasing access to childcare; and increasing labour supply and gender equality.

In relation to policy to facilitate the reconciliation of work and family life a strategy to co-ordinate policy concerning families and family life is due for completion by the end of summer 2005. The strategy will help to guide future developments in this policy area.

5.2.2 Facilitating Access to Resources, Rights, Goods and Services for All

Health

A major reform programme is currently underway within the Irish health system. Under the programme, the Health Act 2004 provided for the establishment of a Health Services Executive (HSE) on a statutory basis with effect from 1 January 2005. The HSE took over responsibility for the management and delivery of health services from the Eastern Regional Health Authority, the seven regional health boards and a number of other specified agencies. The HSE will also take over a number of operational functions from the Department of Health and Children. The establishment of the HSE provides for a unitary system for the management and delivery of health and personal social services. The measures will enable greater efficiency, effectiveness, value for money, quality of service, integration of services and accountability within a unitary management and delivery system. It is envisaged that at both levels of the system the reform will facilitate a more focused and co-ordinated approach to social inclusion issues.

The development of the report of the Expert Group on Mental Health Policy is well advanced and the report is expected to be published towards the end of 2005. The Department has commenced work on a new legislative framework for eligibility. A new National Cancer Strategy is currently being finalised. The new Strategy will set out the key priorities for the development of cancer services over the coming years and will make recommendations in relation to the organisation of cancer services nationally.

Housing

A new framework of five-year action plans for local authority social and affordable housing programmes has been introduced to cover the period 2004-2008. The action plans encompass the provision of social rented accommodation by the local authority, the voluntary and co-operative housing sector, Traveller accommodation, measures to address homelessness as well as affordable housing and programmes to regenerate the existing local authority stock. These plans will ensure that resources are used to best effect to deliver the optimum level of quality housing to address social inclusion objectives of breaking cycles of disadvantage and dependency. A mid term review of plans will be undertaken in 2006 which will allow for adjustments to be made in light of actual performance and any new housing policy initiatives arising in the interim.

A recent report by the National Economic and Social Council on housing will be a key element in the consideration of future housing policy. The report provides an important analysis of the Irish housing system and an agenda for the future development of policy. Importantly, the report recognises that the general thrust of existing policy is well directed. The Department of Environment Heritage and Local Government is examining the issues raised in the report and is considering new measures that are desirable both in the short term and in the more medium term.

Educational Inclusion

DEIS (Delivering 'Equality of Opportunity In Schools') a new action plan for educational inclusion was launched in May 2005. The new plan will be implemented on a phased basis over the next five years and is the outcome of the first full review of all programmes for tackling educational disadvantage that have been put in place over the past twenty years. This new action plan will focus on addressing the educational needs of children and young people from disadvantaged communities, from pre-school through second-level education. Moving to a single programme of supports for all disadvantaged schools will result in a more integrated and coordinated approach.

A Joint Working Group drawn from the Educational Disadvantage Committee and from the Advisory Committee on Traveller Education is finalising a strategy on Traveller education. The main focus of the Traveller Education Strategy exercise has been to review and evaluate existing provision from pre-school to adult and further education. The strategy, to be completed by autumn 2005, will provide recommendations on the way forward in relation to Traveller education.

5.2.3 To Prevent the Risks of Exclusion

e-Inclusion

Following a review of e-Inclusion policy a revised national e-Inclusion strategy has been developed. The strategy will inter alia result in the development of projects aimed at building the ICT capacity of groups in the Community and Voluntary sector, enabling them to communicate electronically with other groups and with citizens.

5.2.4 To Help the Most Vulnerable

Disability Strategy

As part of the Disability Strategy, six sectoral plans have been developed, which set out the services to be provided to people with disabilities in the areas of health, transport, communications/marine, welfare, employment and the environment.

A multi-annual investment programme for disability specific services in health and education was announced in Budget 2005. This provides for additional expenditure of €150 million in 2005 and a further €900 million over the period 2006-2009.

Policy on migration

Work on the development of the Immigration and Residence Bill is ongoing. Preparatory work has included public consultation and a review of best practice internationally. A discussion document, 'Immigration and Residence in Ireland – Outline policy proposals for an Immigration and Residence Bill' was published in April 2005.

The Irish Naturalisation and Immigration Service (INIS) will be established as an executive office within the Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform. The Service will incorporate the Department of Justice, Equality and Law Reform's current structures dealing with asylum, immigration and citizenship.

Homelessness

A review of the national homelessness strategy was completed in May 2005 and contains a number of recommendations to promote further progress in addressing homelessness. These recommendations will inform further policy development in this area.

5.3 Developments planned in other areas

In addition to the above planned developments under the four common objectives of the NAP/Inclusion other developments proposed for 2005/2006 are also relevant to policy to combat poverty and social exclusion. These are detailed below.

5.3.1 Addressing Data Deficiencies

A key part of the monitoring and evaluation process under the Plan is measuring the outcomes being achieved by policies and programmes and by the resources spent and invested, as measured by indicators which cover the main dimensions of poverty. As pointed out elsewhere in this report, this is not straightforward and the NAP/inclusion monitoring process has identified an absence of data and/or indicators in relation to certain targets which make it impossible to measure progress or to state with certainty that the target has been or will be met. Addressing these data difficulties, in particular in relation to vulnerable groups identified in the NAP/inclusion, has been identified as a key priority for the Office for Social Inclusion for the next twelve months, working through the NAPS Technical Advisory Group. As part of this process, the potential for Departments to agree new or more specific targets for the next National Action Plan will be considered as well as the implications for target setting of new emerging needs or of new growing categories of groups, such as ethnic minorities.

The revision of existing deprivation indicators used to monitor consistent poverty in Ireland, taking account of developments in this regard at EU level, has also been identified as a priority for the NAPS Data Strategy over the next twelve months.

It has also been recognised that one of the deficiencies to be addressed in the current Poverty Proofing process is the need for relevant statistical data to underpin the proofing exercise. The existing poverty proofing process is currently being revised and amended guidelines will be circulated to Departments in late 2005/ early 2006.

5.3.2 Streamlining the NAP/inclusion and National Partnership Processes

Combating poverty and social exclusion requires not just a governmental response but a wider societal response to the challenge. Since 1997, when the first National Anti-Poverty Strategy was published, the development of social inclusion strategies has always involved significant consultation with the social partners, employers, trade unions, farmers and the community and voluntary sector, as well as people experiencing poverty. These plans were subsequently endorsed through National Partnership Agreements.

It is anticipated that the Government will initiate discussions with the social partners on a successor to Sustaining Progress - the current National Partnership Agreement - in the autumn of 2005. Given the obvious synergy between the social inclusion element of this Agreement and the 2006-2009 NAP/inclusion, a decision has been taken to seek to streamline the two processes as far as possible with a view to maximising the efficiency and effectiveness of all aspects including consultation, development, implementation, reporting and monitoring.

⁴ This Annex includes a number of tables that were contained in the NAP/inclusion 2003-2005, updated to take account of the first results of the 2003 EU-SILC survey (Survey of Income and Living Conditions) for Ireland. It should be noted that methodological differences between the new EU-SILC survey and the earlier Living in Ireland Survey (LIIS) resulted in a major discontinuity between the two surveys in the measurement of deprivation and consistent poverty. As a consequence of this, it is not possible to draw conclusions from the EU-SILC findings regarding the direction or scale of any real changes in consistent poverty between 2001 and 2003. [This discontinuity is shown by the grey shading of figures in Tables 1.1 – 1.9]

This funding has been provided under the NDP, with the assistance of the ERDF and ESF. A total of €341 million has been approved for a wide range of capital and staffing projects across the country and, on completion of the EOCP, this funding is projected to create some 36,000 new centre based childcare places and will support 30,476 existing places. It is noteworthy that over 24,600 of these new places had already opened by end 2004. Much of the funding remaining under the current strand of the EOCP is required for ongoing support towards the staffing costs of community based not for profit childcare services located in disadvantaged areas and for the continuing support of projects which enhance the quality of childcare in Ireland. Also, 2,213 childcare staff, working directly with children in disadvantaged areas, have been supported under the Programme. INSTITUTIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Cabinet Committee on Social Inclusion, Drugs and Rural Development: this Committee, chaired by the Taoiseach and composed of the relevant Ministers, gives overall strategic direction to the development of policies to combat poverty and social exclusion and ensures that their implementation is regularly monitored and promoted at the highest level. It is supported in its work in this area by the Senior Officials and Management Groups referred to below.

Management Group of Assistant Secretaries: This group, chaired by the OSI, is composed of high level representatives of the key Departments involved in combating poverty and social exclusion. It is responsible for overseeing the work of OSI and the implementation of the NAP/inclusion strategy generally.

Senior Officials Group on Social Inclusion: This Group is chaired by the Department of the Taoiseach. It maintains a broad overview of social inclusion issues and brings emerging topics to the attention of the Cabinet Committee on Social Inclusion. It also deals with policy developments relating to meeting the objectives of social inclusion strategies, and specifically with the special initiatives under the partnership agreement, Sustaining Progress.

Minister for Social and Family Affairs and Department's Management Advisory Committee: The OSI regularly reports on developments to the Minister, who has specific responsibility for the OSI and for reporting on its activities to the Oireachtas (Parliament) (See also below). The Director similarly reports to the Management Advisory Committee of the Department of Social and Family Affairs, of which he is a member.

Oireachtas Committees: The Minister for Social and Family Affairs may be called to present regular progress reports on the implementation of the NAP/inclusion to the Joint Oireachtas Committees on Social and Family Affairs and on European Affairs.

Technical Advisory Group: Work is ongoing on the development of a Data Strategy to underpin the NAP/inclusion. The Office for Social Inclusion is assisted in this regard by a Technical Advisory Group comprising representatives of key Government Departments, the Central Statistics Office, the Combat Poverty Agency, the Economic and Social Research Institute and the Equality Authority.

National Development Plan (NDP)/Community Support Framework (CSF) Monitoring Committees: The OSI has responsibility for supporting the social inclusion horizontal principle within the NDP/CSF. To assist the progression of this process and generally increase the social inclusion focus of the NDP/CSF, the OSI participates on all NDP/CSF Monitoring Committees and works with the Combat Poverty Agency in providing technical assistance.

Social Partnership – Social Inclusion Consultative Group: This group constitutes an important vehicle for involving the social partners in the NAP/inclusion process. It is co-chaired by the Department of the Taoiseach and the OSI and comprises representatives of the relevant Government Departments, the social partners, community and voluntary sector and certain statutory agencies, e.g. the Combat Poverty Agency, the Equality Authority and the Economic and Social Research Institute. The Group meets at least twice a year to offer its advice and observations.

Social Inclusion Forum

The annual Social Inclusion Forum provides individual members of the social partner organisations, the community and voluntary and other sectors, and people experiencing poverty with an opportunity to contribute to the NAP/inclusion process. Progress in relation to the NAP/inclusion is reported to the Forum and provision is made for feedback on its implementation and further development. The Forum is seen as an important mechanism to facilitate consultation with all those who have a stake in the NAP/inclusion process.

Social Inclusion Units: These are established in the key Government Departments and coordinate their Department's contribution to the process in liaison with the OSI.

Agencies working for inclusion:

Combat Poverty Agency (CPA): The CPA is a statutory body working for the prevention and elimination of poverty and social exclusion through advice to Government, developing innovative anti-poverty measures, examining the nature, causes and extent of poverty in Ireland and promoting a greater public understanding of poverty and social exclusion. The OSI works closely with the Agency, particularly in relation to poverty research, promoting regional and local government involvement in the process, EU social inclusion projects and public consultation. A number of projects are ongoing between the OSI and CPA, for example, the development and support of a Local Government Anti-Poverty Learning Network, the Building Healthy Communities programme and actions under the National Development Plan.

Other statutory agencies whose remit involves a social inclusion dimension and with which the OSI works closely include: the National Children's Office; responsible for monitoring and evaluating implementation of the National Children's Strategy; the Equality Authority; and the Family Support Agency.

NAPS Social Inclusion Forum 2005 Main Conclusions and Recommendations

The Conference Report of the 2005 Social Inclusion Forum, which is available on the OSI Website (<http://www.socialinclusion.ie>), provides an overview account of the Forum meeting. It includes a summary of the papers that were presented by guest speakers at the Plenary Sessions, as well as inputs from the speakers and respondents in the five parallel Workshops. It also provides a summary of the discussions that occurred in roundtables, workshops and plenary sessions and details the conclusions and recommendations of the Forum which will feed into the preparation of the 2006-2009 NAP/inclusion. The following summary tables reflect the issues raised during the workshops by Forum participants, many of whom were drawn from the community and voluntary sector or people experiencing poverty.

1. Suggestions from the workshops on target issues that need to be addressed

Older People – Care Services in the Community:

- Recognise the importance of services for older people and provide resources for these;
- Facilitate the participation of older people in society and decision making;
- Fully recognise the contribution older people have made and continue to make;
- Resume the Need for integrated, seamless services for older people to overcome present inequity in the coverage and access to services; and
- Broaden the NAPS targets to reflect a broader definition of poverty that recognises exclusion.

Children and Young People – Educational Disadvantage:

- Complete the review of educational disadvantage programmes;
- Review the meaning and resourcing of schools designated as disadvantaged;
- Increase the emphasis placed on early childhood education;
- Review the NAPS targets and clarify their meaning;
- Improve current and devise new data collection strategies.

People with Disabilities – Access to Education, Training and Employment:

- Consider introducing a portable ‘Cost of Disability’ payment, which people would carry with them into education, training or employment;
- Increase and improve pre-employment and workplace supports;
- Employers should introduce job retention supports for people who acquire a disability at work;
- Ensure all employers’ facilities have adequate access for people with disabilities;
- Increase inter-agency co-operation to deliver appropriate supports and services; and
- Need for policy-makers to listen more to people with disabilities.

Minority Groups – Integration Strategies:

- Address issues that are not currently named in NAPS or NAP/inclusion, including the specific needs of the deaf community, the issue of Direct Provision for asylum seekers and refugees, and the habitual residency rule for migrant workers;
- Increase the attention paid to migrant workers and address the lack of progress on the proposed integration strategy;
- Increase resources available to address the needs of minority groups;
- Address the needs of minority groups from a rights perspective; and
- Include minority groups in all integration policies and from the perspective of inclusion not assimilation.

Women – Decision Making and Participation:

- Ensure that there are linkages between NAPS and the forthcoming National Women's Strategy;
- Include a target for women and decision-making in the NAPS;
- Strengthen the commitment to and legislative basis of quotas and introduce sanctions for not attaining these;
- Ensure that women's organisations are represented in social partnership;
- Introduce measures to combat negative attitudes to women's involvement in local and national politics and representative structures;
- Improve the mainstreaming of learning from local women's projects; and
- Support men's groups to address their own issues rather than asking women's groups to do this for them.

2. Horizontal Issues Identified by the Workshops (National and Local Level)

National Issues:

- Political commitment needs to be strengthened;
- Increase inter-departmental co-operation and integrated policies;
- Improve and implement policy proofing for poverty, equality etc;
- Consider the adoption of a rights and / or equality approach; and
- Increase funding for the NAPS and make it more flexible.

Local Issues:

- Make local government structures more responsible for the implementation of policies and strategies. Devise local and regional strategies for data collection;
- Consult more with people at local and regional level; and
- Provide increased resources for implementation at local level and the mainstreaming of local initiatives.

Poverty Measurement, targets and Indicators:

- Clarify poverty measures and broaden the concept of poverty;
- Devise new indicators of deprivation;
- Consider the use of an equality framework;

- Devise realistic and challenging targets, including targets for specific vulnerable groups and service delivery – at national local and regional level;
- Involve people in the design of targets and indicators;
- Increase monitoring and accountability for reaching targets;
- Make disaggregated data and analysis of data readily available;
- Appoint a Minister for Older People;
- Address child poverty and childcare; and
- Develop family-friendly policies.

Copies of the conference report are also available from the NESF Secretariat, 16 Parnell Square, Dublin 1, E-mail: info@nesf.ie or from the NESF website at: www.nesf.ie.

ANNEX 5

Regional and Local Impact

Local Government Anti-Poverty Learning Network

The Local Government Anti-Poverty Learning Network promotes and supports the development of a strong anti-poverty focus within a reformed system of local government. The Network provides a forum in which local authorities can share experiences and best practice and consider how to make the maximum contribution to policies to tackle poverty and social exclusion. It also supports local authorities in incorporating a strong anti-poverty focus within their work.

In 2002 a review of the Network was commissioned by the CPA in order to measure its effectiveness as well as to make recommendations for its future development. This review was carried out in 2004 by independent consultants. As a result of the review, it has been decided the operations of the network will continue, albeit in a slightly revised format. A new Steering Group has been set up, chaired by the Department of Environment, Heritage and Local Government and comprising members from the Combat Poverty Agency, the Office for Social Inclusion, the Local Government Management Services Board (LGMSB) and the Institute for Public Administration (IPA). The role of the steering Group is to oversee the workings of the Network and to examine others ways in which social inclusion can be promoted in local authorities.

The IPA will take over logistical arrangements for the meeting while the LGMSB will promote social inclusion as part of the normal training/education programmes for local authority staff with the result that social inclusion can be mainstreamed within the normal work of local authorities.

County and City Development Boards

The social inclusion role of the County and City Development Boards and their constituent Social Inclusion Measures (SIM) Co-ordinating Groups continued to develop particularly through their involvement in implementing the Joint Ministerial Initiative on Improving Local and Community Development Structures and Programmes. This is an initiative involving the Minister for the Environment, Heritage and Local Government, the Minister for Community, Rural and Gaeltacht Affairs and the Minister for Justice, Equality and Law Reform.

This initiative has seen the CDBs / SIM Co-ordinating Groups playing a central role in;

- the endorsement of local/community development plans leading to greater cohesion among agencies;
- developing and monitoring the implementation of proposals from local/community development groups aimed at greater cohesion in service provision;
- The development and implementation of plans for improved cohesion among local community and development bodies. Funding for approved plans is being provided by the Department of Community, Rural and Gaeltacht Affairs and allocations to CDBs totalling €2.9m were announced in November 2004; and
- A Review of CDB Strategies. In January 2005, each CDB was asked to carry out a review of its county / city Strategy for Economic, Social and Cultural Development. These were originally published in 2002. All Boards are being asked to examine progress to date, to identify limited number of key priorities and actions to improve co-ordination and delivery of public services at local level including those aimed at counteracting social inclusion. The review is to be completed by the end of 2005.

Many of the CDBs have developed local social inclusion strategies to underpin and strengthen the national actions being taken (see Local Focus section of OSI website – www.socialinclusion.ie for more detail.

Local Authority Structures

Pilot Social Inclusion Units were established in seven local authorities for a three-year period (2002-2004) A Social Inclusion Unit was in operation in Dublin City Council prior to the commencement of the pilot units, but has also received funding under the pilot scheme. The Department of Environment, Heritage and Local Government (D/EHLG) provided total funding of €3.1 million for the establishment and operation of the units for the three-year duration of the pilot scheme. In June 2004, independent consultants were engaged to undertake a review and evaluation of the pilot programme. A report was presented to the D/EHLG in late 2004, and a decision was taken to continue the funding for the units for one more year at a cost of over €1m. The Report is still under consideration by the Department and a final decision on the long-term future of the units is expected before the end of 2005.

Embedding of Social Inclusion in Corporate Plans. Social Inclusion is a key cross-cutting theme across local government services and activities. In June 2004, local authorities were asked by the D/EHLG to prepare Corporate Plans for 2004-2009, and to ensure that social inclusion is addressed in those plans. Guidelines setting out the approach to be adopted were issued by the Department. Each local authority is also required to prepare an Operational Plan for each year of the Corporate Plan's timeframe. The Operational Plan spells out in more detail the activities undertaken by the different service areas.

Anti-Poverty work in the health services

Work to support health service staff at a regional and local level in implementing actions to achieve the key NAPS health targets commenced during the lifetime of the NAP/inclusion. This work aims to raise awareness of NAPS targets and social inclusion issues in the wider health service and lay the foundation for a learning network to ensure, inter alia, that social inclusion issues are better addressed in health service staff training; and that actions to address further NAPS health target achievement in the context of all major policy implementation are mainstreamed. The first phase of the work, which was progressed during 2004, related to information gathering and agenda setting including scoping of anti-poverty work in health boards; a survey of senior health board staff to identify strategic issues; and a baseline survey of health board staff to measure awareness of anti-poverty work

National Development Plan/Community Support Framework (NDP/CSF)

The NDP/CSF provides for an investment of over €52 billion of Public, Private and EU funds (in 1999 prices) over the period 2000-2006. The Plan involves significant investment in health services, social housing, education, roads, public transport, rural development, industry, water and waste services. The promotion of social inclusion is one of the four key horizontal principles underpinning the NDP/CSF. This involves a multi-faceted approach to the promotion of social inclusion, including both mainstreamed and targeted interventions aimed at areas and groups affected by poverty and social exclusion throughout the community. In total, some €19 billion is provided in the Plan directly to promote Social Inclusion.

In order to monitor the impact of the NDP/CSF on social inclusion, all those measures under the Plan which are most directly relevant to social inclusion have been adapted to ensure that the promotion of social inclusion is clearly identified in their objectives. In addition, indicators have been developed in many cases to track progress in this area and each measure must report on an annual basis on the progress against the objectives, using these indicators, as well as on the actions that have been taken during that year to promote social inclusion.

Peace Programme

The border counties of Ireland have been affected by the Northern Ireland conflict which has contributed to poverty and social exclusion in these areas. There is a strong but complex relationship between poverty and conflict. In addressing poverty and conflict the rebuilding of physical infrastructure and economic regeneration are both important elements of reconstruction but there is a vital need to reconstruct civil society, education and health services, as well as relationships between communities and individuals. The EU funded Peace Programmes in Northern Ireland and the Border Region of Ireland have made an enormous contribution to date in supporting such reconstruction.

Annex 6

Programmes to Combat Urban Poverty and Rural Disadvantage

- Local Development Social Inclusion Programme
This programme aims to counter disadvantage and promote equality and social and economic inclusion through supporting actions across 3 sub measures; services to the unemployed, community development, and community based youth initiatives. To date over 250,000 people have directly participated in these services and funding for 2005 of €45.7m has been provided (an increase of 6% over 2004).
- Community Development Programme
The Community Development Programme is designed to reduce poverty and social exclusion through targeting support at groups and individuals who live in communities experiencing high levels of unemployment and poverty. Since its establishment in 1990, the Programme has expanded from 9 projects to a network of 180, with 25 new projects being funded between September 2003 and April 2005. In 2004 over 30,000 people used the services and resources of their local CDP and over €22.3 million of funding has been allocated to the Programme in 2005.
- RAPID
The RAPID Programme is a focused Government initiative, which targets the 45 most disadvantaged urban areas in the country. In 2004 RAPID areas benefited through the development of playgrounds, improvement works in local authority housing estates/flat complexes and the allocation of additional top-up funding to successful applicants under the Sports Capital Programme 2004. Funding to co-fund measures in RAPID areas has been significantly increased in 2005, with €7.5 million available this year, compared €4.5m in 2004.
- CLÁR Programme
The main ways in which rural disadvantage was tackled was via grants paid out to projects aimed at increasing employment and also through the CLÁR programme. Under this programme, a range of projects were approved for funding between 2002 and 2005 with €1.62m allocated to 122 projects aimed at increasing employment, €4.92m allocated to 111 projects in the health area, €1.3m allocated to 370 education related projects and €3.7m allocated to 1,896 projects to improve services to rural housing. A further €6.1m has been allocated under this final heading and the projects are currently being identified.
- Review of Community and Local Development Structures
In order to improve the cohesion of all state services involved in social inclusion activities, a review of Community and Local Development Structures has been ongoing since 2004. Arising from this review, there is a requirement on public bodies that they look at existing structures when new initiatives in this area are being planned and County and City Development Boards now endorse the plans of bodies operating within their area. In addition, €3.248m in 2004 and €4.02m in 2005 has been allocated to fund proposals from County and City Development Boards to improve coordination and delivery of state support services.

Annex 7

Key Initiatives to Combat Long-Term Unemployment

- The Prevention and Activation Process, under which the Department of Social and Family Affairs (DSFA) refers all persons reaching six months of unemployment for interview by FÁS (the public employment service). In 2004, a total of 52,328 clients were referred to FAS, of whom 35,136 attended the interview. This process is currently under review and it is anticipated that this review will indicate improvements that will impact more positively on the long term unemployed. In addition to this a cross-departmental expenditure review of state supports for the long term unemployed aims to draw up appropriate recommendations on the tailoring, prioritisation and direction of future supports for the long term unemployed.
- The High Support Process – introduced in 2003 and mainstreamed the following year. This is a flexible process designed to provide a range of responses for clients who are experiencing major barriers in progressing from unemployment to the workforce. 370 clients were supported during 2004 and a provisional budget of €1.3 million was allocated to the HSP for 2005;
